PERSONAL COMMENTS

This may be the final in a series of spiritual poetry works done over the past years. Each was done out of pure motives and with the honest desire to reflect a little of the Lord Yeshua by his Spirit as light onto any readers. The purpose of course is to honor him, and to be obedient as a disciple to his wishes concerning the writing gift he has given to me. Encouragement in the sharing of mutual faith is another goal. After all we exist in him and through him, and our lives are open books to any that care to look. Certainly anyone serious about being a disciple understands the complete dependency involved, as well as the fact that books are meticulously kept in heaven concerning each of our lives on earth, thus the ease of transparency in the face of accountability. Also a very confident freedom in the knowledge of a certain name recorded in the Book of Life.

I thank my wife, Carol, always for being the tender heart she is, patient with me, encouraging and caring. Also for proofreading and helping steer me along at times. And for dipping just a little into her artistic talents.

Having recently moved to Sedona, Arizona has been a boost in ways. The environment certainly helps with health related issues and provides types of stimulation for writers, seekers, dreamers, and people who like to work as well as those who don't. Also a strong core group of true believers in the area helps as well. I am grateful for this.

Finally my prayer is that the two hundred or so pieces touch the heart and spirit and find the right target in the soul. My writing style is not the usual. But what counts, what matters is that it comes from a heart that is led by Messiah's Spirit. May Heaven's peace settle upon you with deep rest and contentment!
